BRILLIANT ROUND OF BALLS. DANCES AND RECEPTIONS.

Parties, Engagements, Weddings, Tens. Entertainments of Every Kind-Personal Notes and Other News.

LYNCHBURG, VA., Nov. 2.-There was a brilliant gathering at the home of Mr. John L. Akers, on Daniel's Hill, last night to witness the marriage of his only daughter, Miss Jennie, to Mr. Albert B. pulpage, a promising young business man of this city. It was a "home weddecorated, as well as the diningcoms and halls, with ivy, holly and other winter greens, while the mantels were gay with yellow and white chrysanvines. Hanging from the centre of large lace-draped bay window in front parlor was an exquisite marriage bell of pure white flowers, beneath solemn words were spoken which made them man and wife. The Rev. Mr. Betty, of Court-street Methodist church, was the officiating minister, and the ceremony was very beautifully and impressively performed.

A white canvas marked the path for bridal party, who entered in the follow-fag order: First, the mother and relatives of the groom and those of the bride; then the ushers, six in number, walking two abreast, as follows: Mr. Robert Snead and Mr. Hubert Watts, Mr. Risque Hutter and Mr. Carrington Hubbard, Mr. W. D. Smith and Mr. Robert Camp. Next the Smith and Mr. Robert Camp. Next the groom, supported by his best man, Mr. Eugene Akers, brother of the bride. Then the maid of honor, Miss Nannie Hutter, charmingly attired in a gown of white silk, with white mult overdress, trimnings of white satin ribbon, and carrying a bouquet of white and plnk rose The bride followed, on the arm of her father, looking exceedingly handsome in a robe of rich white faille, made princess, high neck and long sleeves, and fitting cimirably. (Touds of tulle enveloped per graceful figure, the veil falling over r face and fastened with sprays of y of the valley, and a bouquet of bride's ses in her hand. After the ceremony hand-shakings and congratulations fol-lawed, and a good deal of old-fashioned sing, for the bride is a favorite and a mber of her school friends were presindeed, the whole affair was characerized by a beautiness and cordiality etimes lacking on similar occasions.

STAUNTON, VA., Nov. 5 .- The muchtalked of Domino Ball given by the young ladies of Staunton to their gentlemen friends on Halloween proved a brilliant affair. The hall was tastefully decorated in bunting, flags and autumn leaves. At 9 o'clock the Italian orchesplayed the sweet strains of some old familiar march, and with the lights turned low the girls two by two, robed in their white domino costumes, marched in measured tread up and around the large ball-room, led by Misses Minnie McCoy and Aurelia McCue. The disguises were good. The young men being completely at a loss to know by what fair damsel they were being led through

A DRUGGIST MISSING.

His Creditors are Numerous and There's a Woman in the Case.

Morris Binswanger, a druggist at the corner of Fourth and Baker streets, is missing, and so is also a woman whose name is said to be Ida Wilkins. Rumors were rife around that vicinity yesterday, but hard to run down.

I called on several of the neighbors for information, but all seemed to be in a state of protestation of any acquaintance with the circumstances of the case. Mr. Binswanger has for seven or eight months conducted a small drug store at the corrections. conducted a small drug store at the corner named, and, apparently, was doing

It was reported that his partner in the elopement was a married woman, with a husband living in this city, but this his brother, who came on yesterday from Baltimore to look after his affairs, said, was untrue. The woman has a child five or six years of age, which, it is supposed, she carried with her. Mr. Morris Binswanger was said to be an accomplished druggist, and very popular with all who knew him. He came from Baltimore to Richmond several years ago, and is not identified with the well-known family of the same name in this city.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

An Interesting Meeting of the Society For The Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals met at the house of Mr. George N Woodbridge, No. 216 east Franklip street on Friday night and transacted considerable business, adopting by-laws, appointing committees, receiving reports, &c. it is very gratifying to note the lively interest that is being taken in the work of this young and beneficent society by some very prominent business men as well as a large number of the ladies of the city who have both time and means to devote to it, and whose prominence and influence give promise of success. After the business of the meeting had been transacted a considerable amount of informal talk was indulged in by those present which showed that the members were largely interested in the work of the society, and also that they were well informed of the value and needs our silent friends.

Major Robert Styles contributed some very interesting stories, showing the re-markable instinct or intelligence of dogs that had come under his observation, and the ladies present showed a marked interest in these subjects.

A listener to the sentiments expressed the thought that there are very many people who might say with Cowper: I would not en eren my list of friends. Though graced with polished manners and The sen e Yet wanting sensibility, the man Who needlessly se s foot upon a worm."

THE STORY OF SICILY, PHOENICIAN, GREEK AND ROMAN, By Edward A. Freeman, Professor of Ancient History in the University of Oxford. G. P. Putnam's Son . For sale by West, Johnston & Co $1.59.

This is one of the series of "The Story of the Nations" which Mr. Freeman begun to write in his lifetime. His original idea was to write a volume on Norman Sicily, but in view of the necessity of first introducing his readers to the earlier stages of Silician history, he decided to write the whole story of Sicily from the earlist days of the Greek colonization to the time of Frederick the Second. The present volume goes down to the end of the Roman Dominion, and the last part of the book deals with Stelly as a from an province, It was the author's in-tention to add to this a second volume, but his death occurred before he was able to
